

Janet Stiegler

Janet is a New Yorker who studied German and Russian. She met her husband Paul in Moscow and they both joined the CIA and lived in Northern Virginia until she moved to Wilmington. In her job as analyst and branch chief in the Directorate of Intelligence, she prepared profiles about foreign leaders for US officials. She honed her analytic and writing skills there, which has served her well in her various positions in WIN.

Janet joined WIN in 2019 and found she fitted in right away. She immediately joined the Small Grants Committee. In 2020, during the pandemic, she worked on the Arts&Culture Circle, interviewing and writing reports on 15 influencers in the arts community. In 2021 she chaired the Grants Committee.

Aside from WIN, Janet is immersed in volunteer activities with OLLI and the Cape Fear Literacy Council, and she enjoys writing creative nonfiction and being out of doors.
